dedication

Rev. Luke Ouska, O.S.B.

Inside the classroom, economics.
Outside the classroom, photography.
But both inside and outside, a
Critical and thorough thinker.
Always thinking.
A most well-rounded man.
Logically objective and discursive
In a wide spectra of disciplines.
A man devoted to quality and Improvement.
Strive to improve.
Improve the quality.
Always there when you need him.
To Rev. Luke Ouska, O.S.B., the Person and the moderator, who has Patiently watched and constantly
Sacrificed while this book was
Evolving to its present stage—
This yearbook is dedicated.

essence

The stress is proportional to the Strain:

Little stress—little strain.

But—

Great Stress!

An avalanche, bleak white,

Oppressing, and

Too much. Much too much.

Four tests, lost ball game, no

Money, no mail,

Grades, graduate school, a

Mountain of books.

The pressure builds, grows,

Crescendos.

Then, release!

Riley's,

A mixer, a new girl, an hour of Loosing self.

Escape! The safety valve is

Opened, the stress sighs forth

Unbound.

The avalanche is subsided.

Monday,

The valve is sealed again.

Again great stress, great strain.

A week—four years.

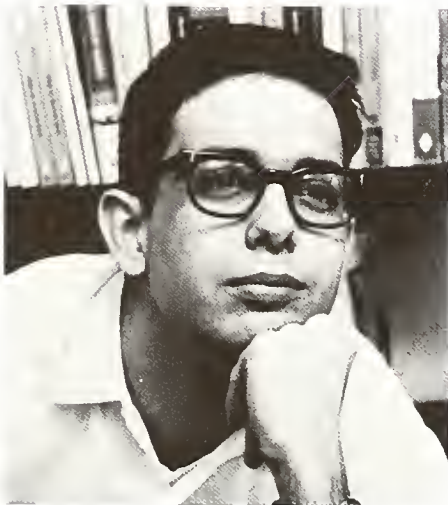

Freshmen arrival, and registration,
An infernal mixing, milling
Mayhem of inexperienced, confused
Boys signing upon themselves a Burden.

It will break some, make some.
But, all willfully undertake,
Through this melee,
The evil, the good,
The Life.

Upperclassmen return also.
Shouted greetings, handshakes,
Stories of the conquests
(Never the failures)
Of the never-to-be-relived summer
Are swapped.

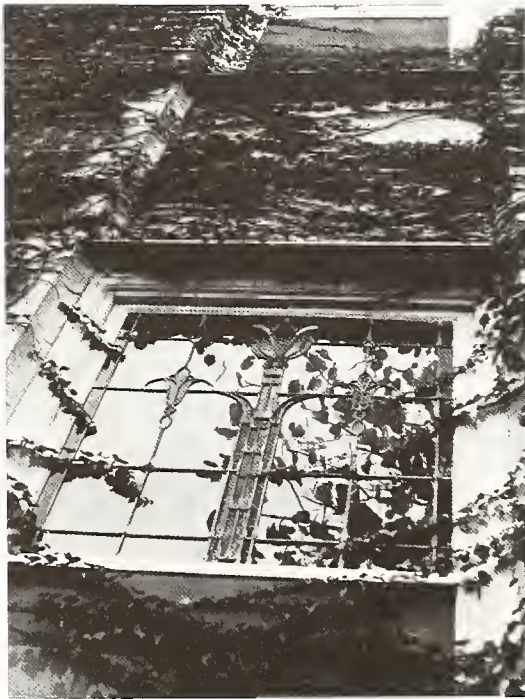

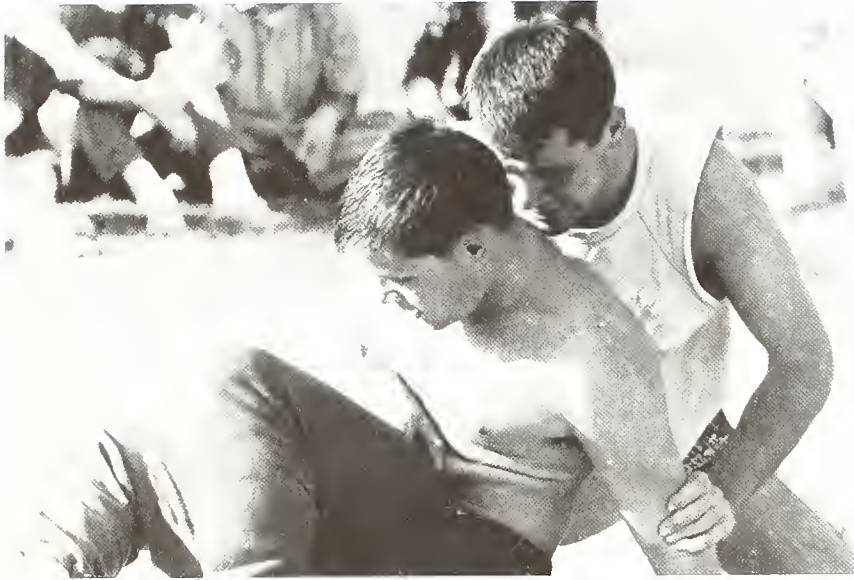

Hell Week

The first week of College:
 A new life.
 New surroundings, new tasks,
 New worries, new pressures.
 Old ways of reacting and coping
 No longer weigh.
 Old values no longer hold meaning.
 It is a hectic, irregular,
 Pressure-filled arena
 Caked with the blood of others
 Who failed.
 It must be entered—there must be
 Engagement and struggle.
 To equip the newcomer for this
 Struggle is the purpose.
 To tear down the old facades,
 To erect new structures,
 To grease the launching slip into
 The Bay of Pigs,
 This is hell week.

Reduction to nothingness,
 Destruction of self-respect,
 Artificial pressures mercilessly
 Thrust upon the lost.
 Forcing the necessity of Cooperation, organization,
 Unity among the destroyed
 Individuals.
 Trial by ordeal to catalyze the Amalgamation of an entity known as Class.
 Tastes of the bewilderments,
 Pressures, and Humiliations crammed down the Gullet in an attempt
 To weld a strong whole from the Remains of Shattered individuals.
 At the end—the beginning of
 A new life, a new period of Pressures, releases, pressures again.
 But approached with arms and armor,
 The ability to cope and react.
 The old ways end: the new ways and
 The new life begin.
 The wheel revolves and the cycle
 Chugs into motion.
 This is Hell Week.

Field Day

One day of
Exhausting surrender
To sport.
Revelry rivaling
The ancient feasts below
Olympus.
One day's sabbatical
From the books
To wash the cobwebs from the Mind with sweat.
To bed with aching-empty body.
Refreshed, revitalized mind.

To lose oneself
In the arms and admiration
Of a delicious
Dolly;
Emotional ecstasy: the Perfume,
Graceful sway,
Flitting eyes,
Flickering smile, and Consuming embrace of
That one girl.

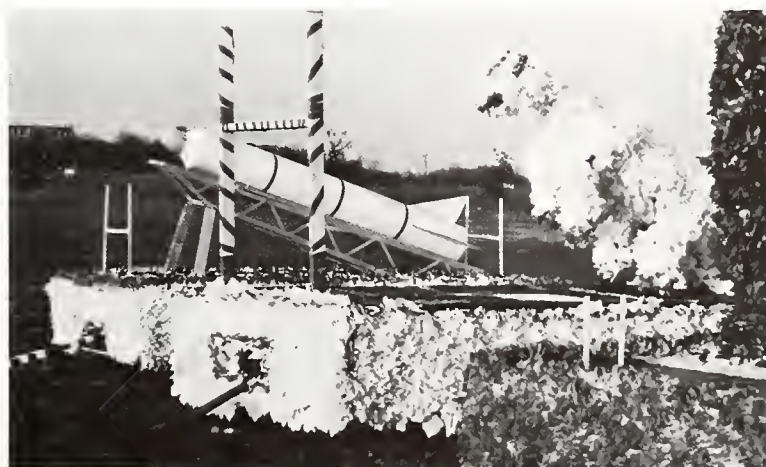

Homecoming

Bonfire,
 Assiduously and dedicatedly
 Built and guarded by the frosh.
 To be burned for the crowd.
 The parade, the life, the spirit,
 The unfortunate score, yet
 Hard-fought game.
 Pride!
 The victory dance.
 Andy Marchese soothes the Hurt of the afternoon's
 Poundings.
 The music envelops the minds of all
 In a blissful erasure of the loss.
 Ebullience, brilliance, verve,
 That special girl
 Make the whole thing the Best time of the year.

Autumn

Particolored leaves,
Sifting, rustling,
Slide to earth on wafts of air,
Darkness falls over the unh! uhn!
Of heaving intramural behemoths.
The slap-clack-crack-grunt of Padded varsity tries vainly
To beat the ever-sooner,
Ever more chilling dusk.
Low-pillow clouds scud by,
Herded by the brisk northerly.
Eventually,
After the bone-biting dusk, and
The cloud-herding northerlies
Have forced into shelter, the Leaves, and Footballer,
The icy fingers of Winter's death
Padlock the world,
And camouflage life with its
White-blanket pall.
Autumn chokes, winter reigns.

Life becomes conflict.
 Pulling, tugging, straining, struggling.
 Against what? Or whom?
 Fellow students vie with us for our
 Very life.
 That oppressive, merciless curve.
 A glint of satisfaction in an eye downcast
 At news of a neighbor's demise.
 My A—His B mean
 Success.
 Why? Good grades mean satisfaction to parents.
 Graduate school
 Prestige.
 They mean a puffed chest, a bright smile,
 A glint of satisfaction,
 But no downcast eye. My A.
 To get grades
 Prime goal, first object, final end.
 Grades write the rule book of behavior and habits.
 No sleep,
 Oceans of coffee, the night shift,
 Deafening silence, drooping heads and lids.
 Then rises the searing, bloodshot sun.
 The tome of impending crisis, marking
 That last hour, that last quick check.
 Men write for two hours.
 Why, with wandering mind, burning eyes,
 and clumsy fingers?
 To get grades

Winter

The crusty, frigid, crystal
 Goaler
 Forces life below, within.
 Raw-windy howling
 Fury,
 Makes men morlocks.
 The library swells with those
 Who seek quiet,
 While the dorms become the Casino and Senate-House.
 The gym rings hollowly with
 Triumphs and screams,
 And raspy horns, and
 The mixer's steady, garbled roar.
 But the death-life murmurs
 'Til the Southerlies banish,
 'Til the icy-fingers release
 The death-choke.
 Morlocks re-enter revitalized
 Nature
 And the campus again lives
 Life.

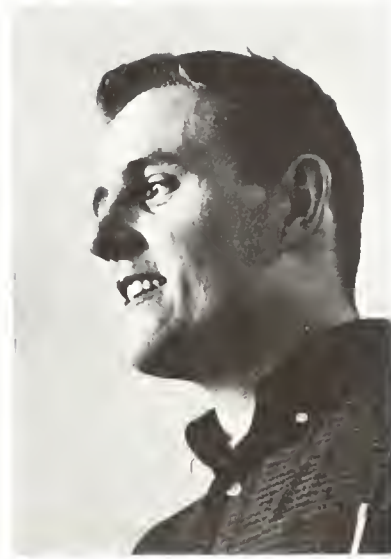

Mixers

The Scent and Sound of Anticipation
 Fills the halls.
 Showers, shaves,
 Shoes shined,
 Hair slicked,
 White shirts, ties,
 Slacks and jackets are pulled
 From the closets
 Dusty from disuse.
 Donned with the hurried bustle
 Of Boys bursting to Break the barriers.
 The Mixer.
 Some dance, some converse.
 All check 'em out.
 There is nothing more refreshing
 Than a swishing skirt
 On a men's campus.
 A night of hopes and dreams.
 The phone number of that wistful,
 Wispy smile.
 Afterwards, the bull-session:
 Speculating, comparing,
 Describing, relating.
 The delights, the dreams,
 The prospects of a budding
 Romance.

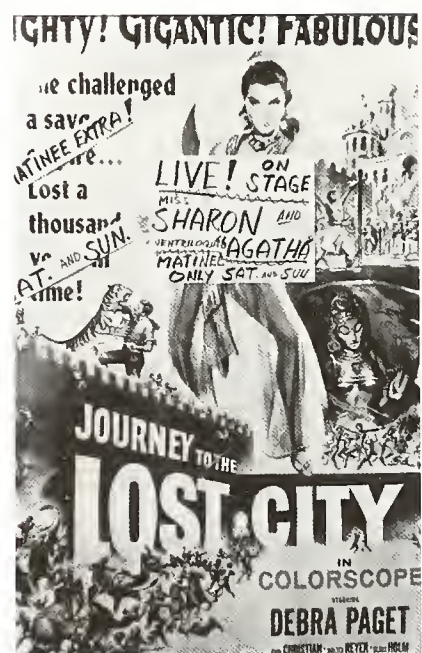

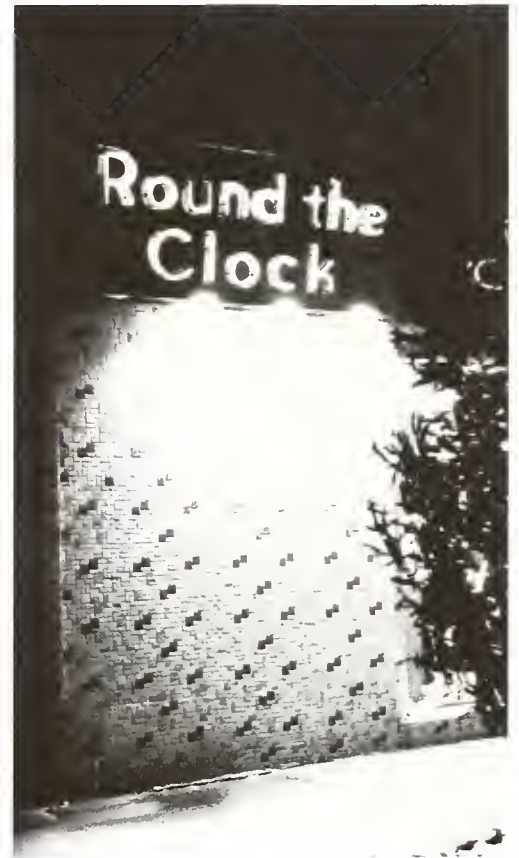

Bull Sessions

Johnson vs. Goldwater,
Vietnam, Selma,
Sports, Girls.
Magnets to draw the crowds
Of interested,
Handtalking, gesticulating,
Sometimes vehement opinions.
Smoke-filled rooms—
Testing chambers
For the opinions and positions
Of the neophyte thinker.

Saturday night brings
Ennui!
The desire to break loose
Runs rampant.
The shackles are shorn
At Riley's,
One show at the Tivoli,
Or the Bowl.
Or a philosophical argument
Over a pizza and beer
At Sprovier's.
To return relaxed
And refreshed for Another week.

Pressure.
To conform, to join,
To act like a college student because
You're supposed to.
Don't be too interested in anything.
Criticize, mock, deride, scoff!
Don't dare show tenderness because
That isn't collegiate.
Don't take a walk in the woods,
Or admire the daffodils,
Or pray fervently,
Or speak against the wrong because
That isn't collegiate.
Criticize, mock, deride, scoff!
But that pressure!
It's there and it won't go away because
It is the life.
But a man is a social creature with emotions.
A man must not always contain these emotions.
A man must not commit the greatest sin:
 All mind—no heart.
There must be an outlet, a safety valve, a channel.
Pressure.
To conform, to join.
To act like a college student because
You're supposed to.

Spring

The shackles of the goaler
Break!
Baseball fly.
The snow slinks away and
Slough relives.
Leaves,
Softball,
Zephyrs,
Short-sleeves, and
Apathetic laziness.
The last push 'til three months of Bliss.

The hectic, blazing, edgy,
Exhausting crisis of finals
Ends.

Suddenly the mellow sun and
Sweet-scented breezes
Impress themselves on the senses.
The mind, dull with sleeplessness,
And the body aching
Seek only one thing as they pack.
All haste is made in the final
Exit of the year
Toward food, bed, and
Three months of non-school.
Good-byes, good-lucks,
And the sweetest auto trip of
A lifetime.

physics

Physics has always been an academic specialty at St. Procopius. Headed by Fr. William Shonka, a well-known physicist in his own right, the department has a large number of graduates pursuing advanced degrees at some of our country's finest universities.

In the area of Physics Research, S.P.C. is very fortunate to have Dr. Francis Shonka and Dr. William Jesse. These two internationally famous physicists conduct research and teach in the college. Dr. Jesse has been described by Dr. John Rose, director of Argonne National Laboratory's radiological physics division as "... the world's leader in his field, the most prominent scientist engaged in measuring the fundamental concepts of radiation." Dr. Shonka is the inventor of a series of plastic discs that react to various types of radiation as do human tissue, bone, and muscle. These discs are considered a boon to atomic research.

philosophy

Philosophy is an integral part of a liberal education, and S.P.C. offers courses in all areas of Philosophy. The department is headed by Rt. Rev. Msgr. Elias Denissoff, holder of the rare and coveted title of Agrege from Louvain University, Belgium. Monsignor is the author of a score of philosophical works. He published a work on the Moscovite civilization of the 16th century: "Maxime the Greek and the West." This work has received three academic prizes, from the Sorbonne, from the Academie Francaise, and from the French Institute of Byzantine Studies. Dr. Denissoff is a long-time personal friend of French philosopher Jacques Maritain, who witnessed Dr. Denissoff's marriage and is the godfather of his elder daughter Jacqueline.

Another interesting figure connected with the philosophy department is Canon Werner F. Peeters. A native of Belgium, Professor Peeters graduated summa cum laude from Louvain University with a doctorate in philosophy. He has also done advanced studies in eight modern and classical languages and in psychiatry. In 1938, Rev. Peeters won the Inter-University Concourse of Philosophy in Belgium. While on our faculty, he hopes to publish his philosophical works, among which is an Introduction to Philosophy and an original study of the Jewish philosopher, Hillel ben Samuel ben Bleazar.

literature

Rev. Leo C. Vancura, O.S.B., M.A.
Head

The Literature Department, under the capable leadership of Fr. Leo Vancura, is making great strides to modernize and improve the quality of its curriculum. There is greater diversity of subject matter, and the courses are geared to more in-depth study of the various areas of literature.

There has been an addition of a new face to the department and the welcome return of a former professor.

Mrs. Patricia T. Taylor, the new face, is joining the staff after receiving her B.A. from Chestnut Hill College, Philadelphia, and her M.A. at Loyola University, Chicago. She is teaching American Literature and freshman Rhetoric.

The returning former professor, Mr. Donald Lawler, is once again teaching full time. After a year's leave of absence spent pursuing his doctorate at the University of Chicago, Mr. Lawler has once again assumed his position as Professor of English Literature while preparing his doctoral dissertation at the University of Chicago.

history

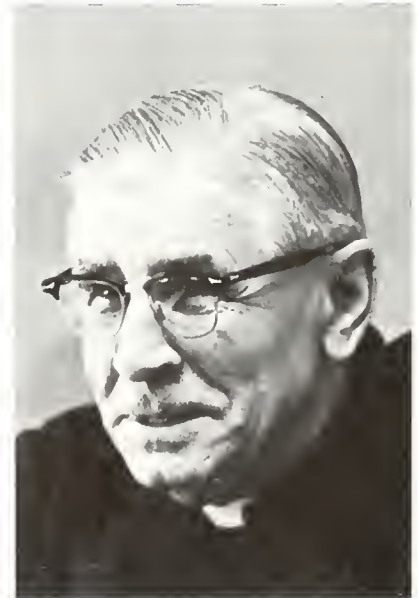

Rev. Christian W. Cepelch
O.S.B., Ph.D.
Head

Joseph Cada, Ph.D.

Charles W. Chappius, M.A.

Rev. Basil C. Kolar, O.S.B., B.A.

There are also new faces in the History Department. Fr. Christian, the Head of the department, has secured the services of Mr. Gregory Sand, last year in the Political Science Department, and Mr. William W. Chappius.

Mr. Sand, who received his Master's degree from Creighton University, teaches his specialty, Diplomatic History.

Coming from Ohio State University, where he earned his Master's degree, Mr. Chappius is teaching several European History courses. He is working on his doctoral dissertation at Notre Dame University.

Dr. Joseph Cada resumed his teaching duties during the second semester after a scholarly visit to Europe. Dr. Cada, a past director of Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of Chicago, is currently working on a study of the process of assimilation of eastern European immigrants into the American culture. His interest in the eastern European countries has found an outlet in his work as founder of the St. Procopius Slavic Culture Center on campus.

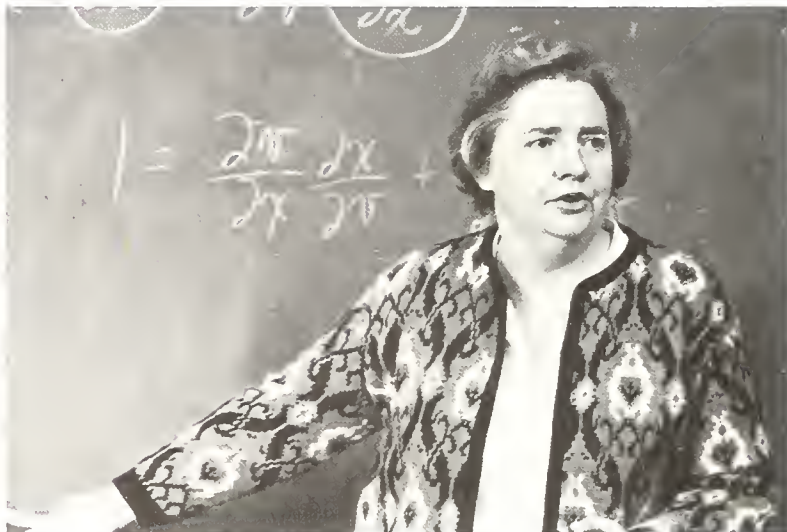

Gregory W. Sand, M.A.

mathematics

Maryrose Shonka, B.A.

Rose A. Carney, Ph.D.
Head

Rev. Paul Tsi, Ph.D.

Richard Nelson, M.S.

Dr. Rose Carney, head of the Mathematics Department, is known for her work on the Manhattan Project at the University of Chicago under the direction of Dr. Enrico Fermi. Dr. Carney has been employed as a resident research associate in the Radiological Physics Division of the Argonne Laboratories. She has been listed in "Who's Who" since 1948.

Rev. Paul Tsi, Ph.D. has returned to the Mathematics Department. He is a native of China and has studied extensively in Rome.

Donald Jordan, M.S.

Richard Sielaff, Ph.D.

biology

Very Rev. Hilary S. Jurica,
O.S.B., Ph.D.

Rev. Edmund J. Jurica, O.S.B., Ph.D.

Two favorite professors at St. Procopius are the Fathers, Fr. Hilary and Fr. Edmund. These two men have gained wide acclaim for their many years of selfless service to the S.P.C. Biology department and to the field of Biological Education in general. From 1938 until 1945, Fr. Hilary was acting Head of the Department of Biology at DePaul University, Chicago. He is also the originator of the widely used Jurica Series of Biology Charts.

Fr. Edmund, the Director of Pre-Medical Studies, has been instrumental in educating many of today's doctors and dentists. His avid interest in and dedication to the realm of medical science have inspired many students. Father Edmund was selected St. Procopius' "Educator of the Year" in 1962.

economics

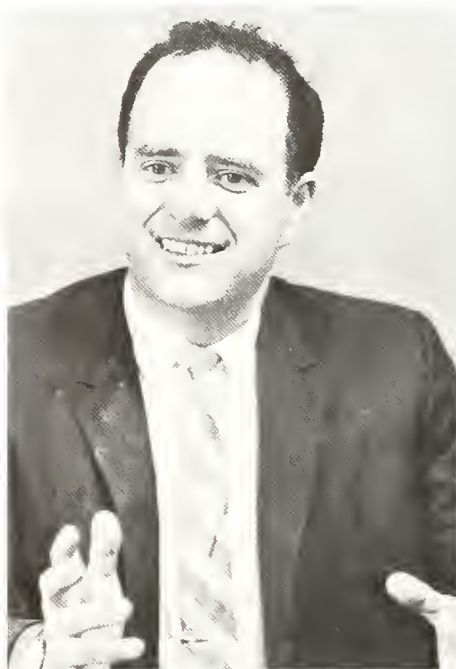

Rev. Luke J. Ouska, O.S.B., M.A.
Head

Melville W. Borders, J.D.

The faculty of the Department of Economics continues to grow with the addition of Mr. Robert Auerbach. He is currently preparing his doctoral dissertation at the University of Chicago.

Mr. Melvin Borders continues as a visiting professor. He was president of Wilson Jones Company until his retirement in 1959, and is a member of the President's advisory committee.

Robert D. Auerbach, M.A.

sociology

James P. Jana, M.A.
Head

Casimir Kotowski, B.A.

Rev. Robert Reicher, M.A.

Mr. James Jana, Head of the Sociology Department, returned this year after a one year leave of absence, spent in pursuit of his doctorate at Loyola University, Chicago. Mr. Jana is presently working on his doctoral dissertation at that university.

The program of the Sociology Department is particularly enhanced by the presence of Rev. Robert Reicher, a priest of the Archdiocese of Chicago. Fr. Reicher is active in social work among the Spanish speaking people on Chicago. He is a consultant to the National Rural Life Conference, is on the advisory board of the Catholic Council for the Spanish Speaking, and is Assistant Chaplain to the Catholic Council on Working Life. Father's forte is Papal Social Thought.

language

Rev. Odilo Crkva, O.S.B., Ph.L.

Rev. Charles W. Kolek, O.S.B., M.A.

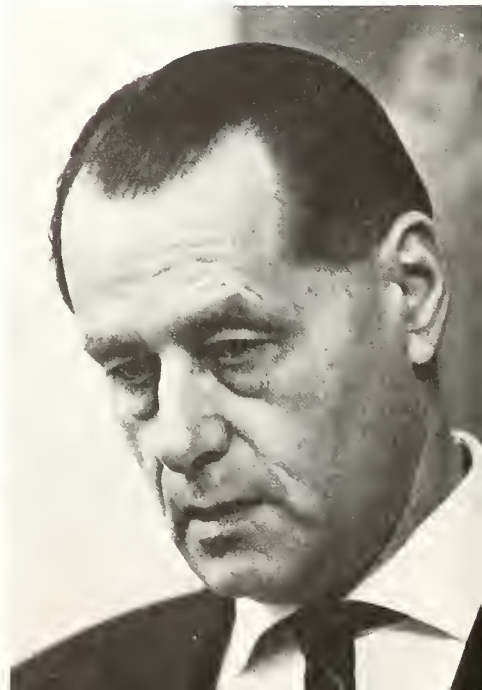

David W. Champlin, M.A.

Rev. Paschal D. Honner, O.S.B., M.A.

Lawrence H. Dapper, M.A.

Luz Maria Alvarez, Ed.D.

A new addition to the curriculum this year is the degree program in modern languages. The addition of a very well equipped language laboratory in the new library enhances the already fine language program.

Mr. Lawrence Dapper, director of the German Division, has studied at many internationally known universities; Laval University, Middlebury College School of Languages, University of Vienna, and Goethe Institute.

Supervising the French and Russian Divisions is Mr. David Champlin. As a hobby, Mr. Champlin has studied oriental languages. His success in this pursuit stood him in good stead during World War II while in the Armed Services as an interpreter.

Mrs. Luz Maria Alvarez, a native of Cuba, received her Doctor of Pedagogy degree from the University of Havana in 1953. Mrs. Alvarez, who recently joined the faculty as Director of Spanish Studies, is responsible for the organization of the Spanish Club, which investigates the mores and lives of Spanish speaking peoples.

education

Rev. De Sales E. Snyder,
O. Carm., M.A.

The Education Department is receiving the full-time benefit of the services of Fr. David Turner this year. Father graduated from the University of Minnesota with a master's degree in Developmental Reading and teaches reading methods in the College.

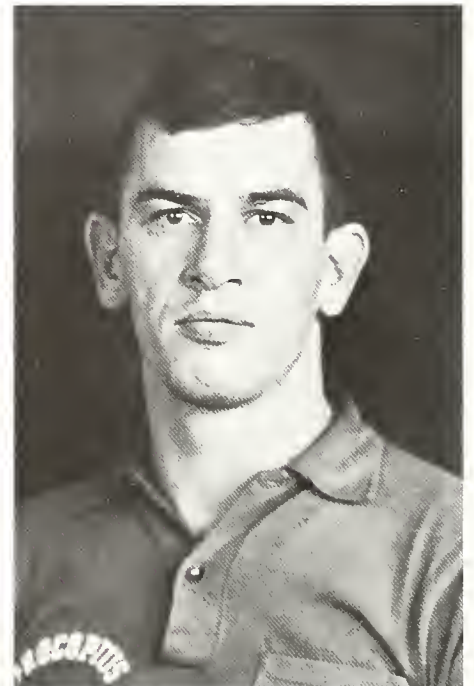

Fr. DeSales Snyder, O.Carm., continues to serve as a visiting lecturer in education. Father is a Carmelite religious administrator and has a rich background from various educational posts he has held in the schools of his community.

Athletic Director

Fred A. Churchill, B.S.

political science

Rev. Valetine Skluzacek, O.S.B., M.A.
Head

The Political Science Department has been greatly enriched by the presence of two new professors. Charles P. Butler has come to us from Johns Hopkins University, where he received his M.A. in Political Science. He is presently working for his doctorate at the same university.

Dr. Marcelino Miyares took his doctorate in jurisprudence at the Catholic University of Havana. In 1964 he earned his master's degree in Political Science from Georgetown University. Dr. Miyares participated in the Bay of Pigs Invasion and was a prisoner of Castro for two years. Mr. Butler and Dr. Miyares are well known on the campus for their coffee shop chats with the students. Both possess a very sincere interest in the advance of higher education.

Marcelino Miyares, J.D., M.A.

Thomas Kelleghan, LL.B.

Charles P. Butler, M.A.

chemistry

Richard E. Dugan, Ph.D.
Head

The Chemistry Department is under the direction of Dr. Richard Dugan, a biochemist well known for his work with Vitamin A.

Dr. Clara McMillan brings with her doctorate from the University of Buenos Aires a strong knowledge of physical chemistry. Notable achievements for Dr. McMillan include assistance in the founding of the Argentine Institute of Physics and research investigations at Argonne National Laboratories.

Dr. James Hazdra, an inorganic chemist, maintains his close contact with industry by conducting research on the chemistry of glass. This research project, subsidized by a division of Continental Can Co., affords students valuable experience in original research. Mr. James Herbach joins the staff as Director of Chemistry Laboratories.

the medium

Probably the most pronounced achievement of this year's staff was the initiation of a long-needed name for the yearbook. The Medium was chosen to denote the battleground for all the conflicting and opposing elements which the student encounters during his fleeting four years of college. In between the midnight rushes to O'Hare Airport in a Chevy which sometimes ran, the staff concentrated its efforts on a symbolic, artistic, and realistic portrayal of college life.

Attempting to report campus happenings when there aren't campus happenings to report can be a frustrating endeavor. The Procopian News endeavored and admirably so. Although reduced in size and issued every three weeks, it managed a thorough blending of pathos, humor, and "cries for justice"—all of which were tastefully and carefully composed.

The Physics Club, an American Institute of Physics student chapter, varied its gatherings with guest lecturers, movies, and a tour of the Argonne National Laboratories. The success of the group again this year can be measured by the award granted by the Bendix Corporation to support the Club project—completion of a gas laser. Members devoted scattered hours and efforts to the tutoring of incoming members, thus suggesting possibilities for a well-organized tutoring program from which freshmen and sophomore Physics majors might benefit.

The student affiliate chapter of the American Chemical Society, now in its second year of existence, continued to sponsor lectures in many areas of the field; it further afforded members additional benefits in the form of locating summer job opportunities and furnishing student rates for Chemical journals.

A fledgling group, suffering from small membership and limited budget, the SPC chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma concerned itself this year with problems of organization and direction. The Society is seeking an approach to the problem of contributions from its integrated student-faculty membership. Looking ahead to next year, more opportunities will be available to student members to exhibit their interests and accomplishments in the field of Physics.

This year, the club visited the Adler Planetarium for a special lecture and tour; also included in the curriculum was a trip to Northwestern's Dearborn Observatory. Movies and lectures rounded out the club's format.

The Society for the Advancement of Fine Arts is an intercollegiate student organization whose function is self-explanatory. This year, students here presented monthly lectures on various topics: "Techniques in Pastels", "Africa and her people", "A criticism of Percy Bysshe Shelley", to name a few. Guest lecturers and a student art exhibit, consisting of student works in painting, music, poetry, sketching, and sculpturing, further enhanced this year's activities.

An inexperienced, aggressive, passing team which will welcome back twenty-four lettermen next year. A disappointing season from the won-lost column, but from a green team and a new coach, not so. McPhie, despite reoccurring injuries, completed 44% and averaged 11 yards per completion. Pike and Borowicz pounded the line for 4 yards per carry averages. Brusko and Szorc braced the line play.

Probably the most exciting team this college has ever seen. A tremendous team composed of exceptional athletes. The team was small, averaging only about 6'1", with no big man. But they could run, shoot, and score (56% from the floor; almost 90 points per game). A 12-8 record which was minutes from being a 14-6 one. Lillwitz averaged 22.9 for a school record. Geist had 19.8; Krajacic 16.1. Credit, too, to the bench for hustle and courage; so that a victory was not one for five players but for twelve.
